

AZOH: Iran has launched a fierce security clampdown in the country's Azeri and Kurdish regions amid fears of rising ethnic tensions on its northern borders.

Reports from inside Iran say security forces clashed with demonstrators in the northwestern cities of Orumieh (aka Urmia) and Tabriz on September 3, with at least one account alleging that troops used live ammunition. Officials say 60 people were arrested in the latest protest.

reported that 13 people were taken to South Azerbaijan Student Movement A live blog posted by the Orumieh's University Hospital suffering from bullet wounds. Four were said to be in critical condition Videos posted on YouTube and purporting to have been shot in both cities showed the heavy presence of riot police and vast numbers of protesters chanting slogans. In one video, a member of the security forces is seen aiming what appears to be a gun at demonstrators. Other footage shows demonstrators running in panic against a backdrop of possible gunfire.

MORE:

http://www.rferl.org/content/iran_fears_ethnic_tensions_in_northwest/24318682.html?page=1#relatedInfoContainer